

The Smoothed Growth Feeder Fund

GBP Factsheet – 31 July 2026

Investment Objective

The fund aims to produce growth over the medium to long-term (5 to 10 years or more) while smoothing some of the ups and downs of short-term investment performance. The underlying fund spreads investment risk by investing in a range of different asset types, which currently includes European and international equities, property, fixed interest securities, index-linked securities and other specialist investments.

Investment Commentary

The conflict in the Middle East dominated financial markets. However, worries that disruption to energy supplies would fuel inflation and hit economic growth receded as the US and Iran reached a peace deal and oil prices dropped. Besides the Iran war, the continued demand for AI infrastructure and memory chips, in particular, was a powerful theme. Equity and bond markets both gained. Global equities rallied, with the S&P 500 returning 15.2%, the best quarterly performance since the post-pandemic rally in 2020. However, Asia and emerging markets stood out. Korea's technology-heavy stockmarket rose more than 80%, driven by gains from its large chipmakers. UK markets rose but lagged the broad global market, held back by weakness among oil stocks and limited exposure to tech stocks. China also underperformed, amid concerns about weak consumer demand. In the bond market, falling oil prices helped ease concerns about the inflation outlook. UK government bonds (gilts) rose 2.0%, reversing some of the weakness in the first quarter, and outperforming US Treasuries and German bunds. US Treasuries were largely flat. Corporate outperformed government bonds with higher risk high yield debt the best performing asset class. Emerging market bonds delivered healthy returns, especially hard-currency government bonds. Commodities struggled. Oil prices fell sharply after the peace deal and ended close to pre-conflict levels. Gold and silver were also weak. In currencies, the US dollar strengthened for the fourth consecutive quarter, particularly against the Japanese yen.

About PruFund

The underlying fund is managed by a team of investment professionals who oversee asset allocation, investment strategy, and risk controls. They actively monitor underlying fund managers to ensure strong governance and compliance, aiming to provide stable and well-managed returns.

By pooling investors' money, the costs of buying and selling assets are spread across a larger group, improving efficiency and enabling access to a diverse range of investments. This approach helps create a balanced and resilient portfolio while reducing the impact of individual transaction costs.

To limit short-term market volatility, the fund uses a smoothing mechanism that reduces extreme fluctuations. While the value of underlying assets changes daily, this mechanism helps ensure investors do not experience the full highs or lows of the market, providing a more stable investment journey.

A key component of this process is the Expected Growth Rate (EGR), which represents the projected long-term return of the fund. Set quarterly based on market expectations over a 15-year period, the EGR determines the daily change in unit price, allowing for more predictable growth.
